Course overview

Develop near-native fluency in two languages and gain the specialist, in-demand skills of translation and interpreting. Tailor your studies to match your interests and career goals with our Modern Languages, Translation and Interpreting BA Honours degree.

Flexible language choices

Choose from a range of languages and build fluency through engaging learning.

- Chinese or Japanese
- French
- German
- Portuguese (from beginner's level only)
- Spanish

One of your language choices will be French, German or Spanish at intermediate level (suitable for those who have an A-Level or equivalent in this language).

Benefit from the flexibility of an optional Year Abroad or UK Careers Placement

Shape your degree to suit your personal and professional goals with one of three flexible options. You can choose to:

- spend a year abroad in your third year to develop your language skills among native speakers and experience a different culture
- undertake a Careers Placement Year in the UK in your third year to gain valuable work experience
- complete your degree in 3 years without spending time on a Year Abroad or on a Careers Placement Year

Regardless of what you choose to do, you will confirm this with us in Stage 2 after receiving guidance and support.

Study with us and become a confident linguist, ready to embark on your career journey as a global citizen.

Modules and learning

Modules

The information below is intended to provide an example of what you will study.

Most degrees are divided into stages. Each stage lasts for one academic year, and you'll complete modules totalling 120 credits by the end of each stage.

Our teaching is informed by research. Course content may change periodically to reflect developments in the discipline, the requirements of external bodies and partners, and student feedback.

Optional module availability

Student demand for optional modules may affect availability.

Full details of the modules on offer will be published through the Programme Regulations and Specifications ahead of each academic year. This usually happens in May.

To find out more please see our terms and conditions

You'll study two languages in Stage 1. However, you'll have the option to drop one of your languages from Stage 2, if you want to focus on one language with translation and interpreting.

There are two routes through the degree.

- If you are studying two of French, German or Spanish from A-Level you will follow pathways in Translation and Interpreting in both languages.
- If you are studying one of French, German or Spanish from A-Level (or equivalent) you will follow a Translation and Interpreting pathway in that language. You also study another language from beginner's level (from Chinese, French, German, Japanese, Portuguese or Spanish).

Alongside your language studies, you'll choose a range of optional modules. These modules will allow you to explore the history and cultures of the countries where your languages are spoken.

Module choices depend upon the languages you choose and the level you study at. Further information to help you with module selection is provided when you start each year of your course.

Optional Year Abroad

Studying abroad is a great way to immerse yourself in local cultures, meet new people and improve your language skills.

Our year abroad is optional, meaning you can choose to study abroad in your third year (making your degree four years), or you can opt out (which will make your degree three years). You do not have to choose right away and will receive plenty of support and advice on your options before you make your decision in Stage 2.

The way you spend your year abroad is up to you. You can:

- work as a British Council teaching assistant in a school (UK nationals only)
- study at a partner university
- undertake an approved work placement

The year abroad is highly flexible and students can choose to either spend their year abroad in one country or divide it between two countries. You can also study at a partner university in one semester and undertake a work placement in another.

Find out more about our current partner universities here.

Optional Careers Placement Year

Work experience can enhance your career prospects beyond university. All modern language students not taking a year abroad have the opportunity to undertake a Careers Placement Year in the UK. This will be in the third year of your study and will make your degree four years long in total.

With a placement year you can choose to do:

- one placement lasting 9-12 months
- two placements which last at least 4.5 months each

Again, you don't need to decide now if you'd like to choose a Placement Year and you will receive plenty of support and advice on your options before you make your decision in Stage 2.

Final year is Stage 4 for those choosing a Year Abroad or a Careers Placement and Stage 3 for those not choosing these options.

In final year, you'll study further translation and interpreting modules. This gives you the opportunity to gain professional skills and an awareness of the issues in translation and interpreting.

Your language studies build on the levels you developed in Stage 2 or during your Year Abroad and you also develop more professional skills and will study language for professional and academic purposes.

As in Stages 1 and 2, you choose optional modules to further develop your knowledge of the countries where your chosen language(s) are spoken.

Module choices depend upon the languages you choose and the level you study at. Further information to help you with module selection is provided when you start each year of your course.

Teaching and assessment

Teaching methods

The majority of language modules are taught by native speakers. You also work in standard or PC-equipped seminar rooms and undertake self-study in our Language Resource Centre. Our cultural modules are informed by the latest research.

Find out more about the Language Resource Centre

Assessment methods

You'll be assessed through a combination of:

- Assessments
- Assignments – written or fieldwork
- Coursework
- Dissertation or research project
- Dossier
- Essays
- Examinations – practical or online
- Group work
- Portfolio submission
- Practical sessions
- Presentations
- Reflective report/journal
- Reports
- Seminar tasks/exercises

Skills and experience

Research skills

You have the option of writing a dissertation in your final year, which allows you to explore and discuss a topic of interest in great detail, while developing research skills.

Opportunities

Optional Year Abroad

This Modern Languages degree includes an optional Year Abroad, meaning the degree can be 3 or 4 years.

Students studying a European language can:

- study at one of our partner universities
- undertake a work or voluntary placement
- undertake a combination of both (ensuring they do not overlap)

You usually divide the year between the countries relating to your chosen languages, although it may be possible to spend the entire year in one country.

If you're studying Chinese or Japanese, you'll spend either a semester or the full academic year studying at one of our partner institutions in China or Japan. If you also study European languages you can split your time and do one of the options above for your European language.

Support for Year Abroad

You will receive lots of help to prepare for your Year Abroad, including:

- briefings covering practicalities like insurance, student safety and country-specific information
- support in finding a work placement

- a Tandem Learning Scheme, to practice conversation in your foreign language and make in-country contacts, before you travel
- a training course for British Council language assistants

There are also events in your second year where you can meet students who have already done their year abroad and students from our partner universities in Europe, Latin America, China and Japan.

You'll be in contact with our Year Abroad team during your time abroad, and will communicate with your personal tutor. You'll also write compulsory blog posts, reflecting on your linguistic, personal and professional development.

Optional Careers Placement Year

Work experience can enhance your career prospects beyond university. If you choose not to take a year abroad, you can undertake a Careers Placement Year in the UK. This will be in the third year of your study and will make your degree four years long in total.

With a placement year you can choose to do:

- one placement lasting 9-12 months
- two placements which last at least 4.5 months each

You don't need to decide right away if you'd like to choose a Placement Year and you'll receive plenty of support and advice on your options before you make your decision in Stage 2.

Facilities and environment

Facilities

As a Modern Languages student, you'll be based at our city centre campus. We've been teaching languages in Newcastle for more than 100 years.

You will have access to PC-equipped rooms and the award-winning Language Resource Centre, with self-study resources for over 100 languages.

You'll also have access to:

- specialist language learning software
- films
- live foreign-language TV channels
- online or on-campus tandem schemes

Support

You'll have the support of an academic member of staff as a personal tutor throughout your degree to help with academic and personal issues.

Peer mentors will help you in your first year. They are fellow students who can help you settle in and answer any questions you have when starting university.

Your future

Studying for our degree in Modern Languages, Translation and Interpreting will open the door to a wide variety of career paths, while adding the specific skills of translation and interpreting to your portfolio.

You may decide to embark directly upon a career in translation and interpreting, or you could follow in the tracks of some graduates, and find work in areas as diverse as tourism, marketing, management, the civil service, advertising and the media, teaching and banking.

Alternatively, if you want to study translation and interpreting further, our degree is excellent preparation for a postgraduate professional qualification.

The degree aims to provide a firm foundation for a career as a freelance translator or interpreter for agencies and commercial clients in the private or public sectors, and work in international organisations.

Make a difference

Careers support

The School of Modern Languages works with the University's Careers Service to organise various employability activities, including an opportunity to network with recent graduates.

Our Careers Service is one of the largest and best in the country, and we have strong links with employers. We provide an extensive range of opportunities to all students through our ncl+ initiative.

Recognition of professional qualifications outside of the UK

If you're studying an accredited degree and thinking about working in Europe after you graduate, the best place to find current information is the UK Government's guidance on recognition of UK professional qualifications in EU member states. This official resource explains whether your profession is regulated in another country, what steps you need to take, and which organisation you should contact.
