Course overview

This Modern Languages and Business Studies BA Honours degree will equip you with the skills and knowledge that are highly prized by employers.

Flexible language choices

Study one or two languages and develop near-native fluency through engaging, practical learning. You'll have the opportunity to study the cultures of the languages you choose through a range of optional modules.

Choose from the following languages:

- Chinese or Japanese
- French
- German
- Portuguese (from beginner's level only)
- Spanish

You could continue learning a language you have studied before and/or try something completely new.

Business Management

Understand the principles and practice of business management through topics such as:

- understanding work and organisations
- marketing
- human resource management

Benefit from the flexibility of an optional Year Abroad or UK Careers Placement

Shape your degree to suit your personal and professional goals with one of three flexible options. You can choose to:

- spend a year abroad in your third year to develop your language skills among native speakers and experience a different culture
- undertake a Careers Placement Year in the UK in your third year to gain valuable work experience
- complete your degree in 3 years without spending time on a Year Abroad or on a Careers Placement Year

Regardless of what you choose to do, you will confirm this with us in Stage 2 after receiving guidance and support.

Study with us and become a confident linguist, ready to embark on your career journey as a global citizen.

Quality and ranking

Professional accreditation and recognition

All professional accreditations are reviewed regularly by their professional body.

Modules and learning

Modules

The information below is intended to provide an example of what you will study.

Most degrees are divided into stages. Each stage lasts for one academic year, and you'll complete modules totalling 120 credits by the end of each stage.

Our teaching is informed by research. Course content may change periodically to reflect developments in the discipline, the requirements of external bodies and partners, and student feedback.

Optional module availability

Student demand for optional modules may affect availability.

Full details of the modules on offer will be published through the Programme Regulations and Specifications ahead of each academic year. This usually happens in May.

To find out more please see our terms and conditions

This degree is run by the School of Modern Languages with either half or a third of your modules taught by the Business School. You can combine your languages in one of three ways:

- one language at beginner's level
- one or two languages at post A-Level (or equivalent)
- two languages – one at post A-Level (or equivalent) and one at beginner's level

Stage 1 of your degree lets you study your language(s) at post A-Level or beginner's level, depending on your current language ability. You can choose from

- Chinese or Japanese
- French
- German
- Portuguese (from beginner's level only)
- Spanish

You will also study modules in the culture, history, cinema or linguistics of the countries where your chosen languages are spoken.

You will study an Introduction to Management and Organisation and have the option to study additional business modules.

If you study two languages in your first year, you may reduce this to just one language for the remainder of your degree before moving on to Stage 2.

Module choices depend upon the languages you choose and the level you study at. Further information to help you with module selection is provided when you start each year of your course.

Optional Year Abroad

Studying abroad is a great way to immerse yourself in local cultures, meet new people and improve your language skills.

Our year abroad is optional, meaning you can choose to study abroad in your third year (making your degree four years) or you can opt out (which will make your degree three years). You do not have to choose right away and will receive plenty of support and advice on your options before you make your decision in Stage 2.

The way you spend your year abroad is up to you. You can:

- work as a British Council teaching assistant in a school (UK nationals only)
- study at a partner university
- undertake an approved work placement

The year abroad is highly flexible and students can choose to either spend their year abroad in one country or divide it between two countries. You can also study at a partner university in one semester and undertake a work placement in another.

Find out more about our current partner universities.

Optional Careers Placement Year

Work experience can enhance your career prospects beyond university. All modern language students not taking a year abroad have the opportunity to undertake a Careers Placement Year in the UK. This will be in the third year of your study and will make your degree four years long in total.

With a placement year you can choose to do:

- one placement lasting 9-12 months
- two placements which last at least 4.5 months each

Again, you don't need to decide now if you'd like to choose a Placement Year and you will receive plenty of support and advice on your options before you make your decision in Stage 2.

Final year is Stage 4 for those choosing a Year Abroad or a Careers Placement and Stage 3 for those not choosing these options.

In final year your language studies build on the levels you developed in Stage 2 or during your Year Abroad and you also develop more professional skills. For French, German and Spanish taken from A-Level or equivalent you will be able to choose to study language for professional purposes or translation and interpreting.

You also select further optional modules to explore the cultures and histories of the countries where your chosen language(s) are spoken, as well as choosing from optional business modules that include marketing, customer behaviour and finance.

Module choices depend upon the languages you choose and the level you study at. Further information to help you with module selection is provided when you start each year of your course.

Teaching and assessment

Teaching methods

The majority of language modules are taught by native speakers. You also work in standard or PC-equipped seminar rooms and undertake self-study in our award-winning Language Resource Centre. Our cultural modules are informed by the latest research.

Read more about our Language Resource Centre

Assessment methods

You'll be assessed through a combination of:

- Assessments
- Assignments – written or fieldwork
- Coursework
- Dissertation or research project
- Dossier
- Essays
- Examinations – practical or online
- Group work
- Portfolio submission
- Practical sessions
- Presentations
- Reflective report/journal
- Reports
- Seminar tasks/exercises

Skills and experience

Research skills

You have the option of writing a dissertation in your final year, which allows you to explore and discuss a topic of interest in great detail, while developing your research skills.

Opportunities

Optional Year Abroad

This Modern Languages degree includes an optional Year Abroad, meaning the degree can be 3 or 4 years.

Students studying a European language can:

- study at one of our partner universities
- undertake a work or voluntary placement
- undertake a combination of both (ensuring they do not overlap)

You usually divide the year between the countries relating to your chosen languages, although it may be possible to spend the entire year in one country.

If you're studying Chinese or Japanese, you'll spend either a semester or the full academic year studying at one of our partner universities in China or Japan. If you also study European languages you can split your time and do one of the options above for your European language.

Support for Year Abroad

You will receive lots of help to prepare for your year abroad, including:

- briefings covering practicalities like insurance, student safety and country-specific information
- support in finding a work placement
- a Tandem Learning Scheme, to practice conversation in your foreign language and make in-country contacts, before you travel
- a training course for British Council language assistants

There are also events in your second year where you can meet students who have already done their year abroad and students from our partner universities in Europe, Latin America, China and Japan.

You'll be in contact with our Year Abroad team during your time abroad, and will communicate with your personal tutor. You'll also write compulsory blog posts, reflecting on your linguistic, personal and professional development.

Optional Careers Placement Year

Work experience can enhance your career prospects beyond university. If you choose not to take a year abroad, you can undertake a Careers Placement Year in the UK. This will be in the third year of your study and will make your degree four years long in total.

With a placement year you can choose to do:

- one placement lasting 9-12 months
- two placements which last at least 4.5 months each

You don't need to decide right away if you'd like to choose a Placement Year and you'll receive plenty of support and advice on your options before you make your decision in Stage 2.

Facilities and environment

Facilities

As a Modern Languages student, you'll be based at our city centre campus. We've been teaching languages in Newcastle for more than 100 years.

You will have access to PC-equipped rooms and the award-winning Language Resource Centre, with self-study resources for over 100 languages.

You'll also have access to:

- specialist language learning software
- films
- live foreign-language TV channels
- online or on-campus tandem schemes

Support

You'll have the support of an academic member of staff as a personal tutor throughout your degree to help with academic and personal issues.

Peer mentors will help you in your first year. They are fellow students who can help you settle in and answer any questions you have when starting university.

Your future

Ability in languages is highly regarded by employers across all sectors, including industry and business. Employers value the linguistic, interpersonal, intercultural and professional skills of language graduates.

International businesses need employees who not only speak another language but also understand the history, politics and culture of the region. The international outlook and knowledge our students develop alongside advanced language skills will allow you to consider career options in a range of fields.

Our graduates find employment in sectors such as business services, marketing, advertising, management, banking and communications.

Some work as researchers, internet consultants, United Nations translators, in local government, with community groups or in refugee support.

Many work in the digital industries or the arts. Teaching is also a popular choice, undertaking primary or secondary Postgraduate Certificate of Education (PGCE) or teaching English abroad.

Make a difference

Careers support

The School of Modern Languages works with the University's Careers Service to organise various employability activities, including an opportunity to network with recent graduates.

Our Careers Service is one of the largest and best in the country, and we have strong links with employers. We provide an extensive range of opportunities to all students through our ncl+ initiative.

Visit our Careers Service website

Recognition of professional qualifications outside of the UK

If you're studying an accredited degree and thinking about working in Europe after you graduate, the best place to find current information is the UK Government's guidance on recognition of UK professional qualifications in EU member states. This official resource explains whether your profession is regulated in another country, what steps you need to take, and which organisation you should contact.
